

MetaJure ILLUMINATETM – FAST, EASY ACCESS to 100% of the knowledge in your law firm

An affordable DMS supplement

With attorneys handling more than 26,000 documents every year—70 per day—email and document management have become major challenges for every modern law firm. Although half of US firms have a document management system, more than 50% of their emails and documents are outside their DMS.

MetaJure ILLUMINATE brings all of this information to light. ILLUMINATE automatically captures, OCR's and indexes all of the documents, folders, and email within a law firm, including the information on personal computers, network drives, or other dedicated storage sites such as Microsoft® SharePoint®, Worldox®, and NetDocuments® - without disrupting the data. It makes all of the information easily accessible through an intuitive, Google-like interface, and enables sharing permissions that lawyers can easily customize.

A mid-size firm had two central repositories – one for documents and another for email. Together they contained more than seven million files. Attorneys and staff complained they couldn't find information, and dealing with two separate systems only added to their frustrations. All of the software solutions the firm reviewed required migrating and/or converting data and cost a great deal of dollars and time, until they found MetaJure ILLUMINATE.

A search tool for legacy data, hidden repositories & unique data locations

Firms need fast, easy access to the information often locked in legacy repositories, discovery files and proprietary systems. But, since traditional solutions require tagging and profiling of legacy data and email or expensive data conversion to migrate files, much of this information often doesn't make it into the DMS. That means key knowledge is not easily available to the attorneys and staff, depriving the firm of the very intellectual property that gives it a competitive advantage. Until now.

Firms are using ILLUMINATE today to unlock their knowledge and access:

- Legacy data and unstructured information on file shares
- Case files, including documents from both clients and opposing counsel
- Dedicated or special network drives, such as those that include only email

A Seattle-based law firm recently installed a document management system. However, converting and loading more than two terabytes of unstructured legacy data was not practical, so the firm left that information in a separate share drive. Attorneys and staff simply were not aware of this gold mine of information until the firm installed MetaJure ILLUMINATE.

Smart pricing

ILLUMINATE is a SaaS product that is priced for firms with a practice management system or a traditional document management system. The annual fee for ILLUMINATE includes maintenance, support and upgrades.

Finally, an easy and powerful solution to accessing 100% of the knowledge inside your law firm.
